

COVID-19 ART COMPETITION

In response to COVID-19, the Art Department is launching competition and are looking at ways to send out message to be safe.

We are looking for work that

1. Sends out a public health and safety message.
2. The second are symbols that help promote mental health, well-being, and social change work during these stressful times.

YOUR art has power. Art can heal, art can save lives, and art can bring us together even while we are apart. It can be a compass to guide us through this storm. This is your chance to make work that will appear on our website and will inspire us all to stay strong, safe, and united.

These symbols will stand long after the virus is gone as a testament to our resilience. Please join us in this historic moment by submitting your Art piece!

You have until the 13th April to submit your entry through google classroom. Code: 3smgsmk

When submitting your entry photograph it and upload as an attachment, preferably as a jpeg format.

Please note that the images above are there to inspire you and not to be copied so as to avoid plagiarism.

If you want to use a particular artist to inspire you. Be as creative as you can.

We will accept work from any medium such as drawn, digital, painted and collaged or a multi - media approach.

Your competition entries will be judged by Dr. Jonathan Kershaw of Bradford Royal Infirmary
